

Missionary to Japan

Years of Service: July 1907 – December 1907

Location: Japan

Next Page

Alfred Stone and Mission Group

Photo from the Iola Stone Sandberg Collection

Alfred Stone in Japan

Photo from the Iola Stone Sandberg Collection

Japan Mission

Photo from the Merle Stone Collection

In company with a missionary family, the Bergstroms, Alfred Stone went to Japan as a missionary. He got sick in Japan with asthma and had to return to America, and was in Portland, Oregon among friends there.

Source: Written Recollections of Alfred Stone

Swimming Story

One day Alfred and the missionary family went swimming. As Alfred was standing in the water, something hit his legs. He reached down to see what it was. It was the son of the missionaries. Alfred reached down and picked him out of the water. If the boy would not have bumped into Alfred, he would have been swept out into the ocean. The boy was fine after his ordeal!

Source: Recollections of Merle Stone